Standing and sitting support

When the muscles are weak, you are in need of a chair that provides good relief. Great demands on function and quality is then necessary.

When your legs are not strong enough, you need a chair both for sitting in and for getting around. This places great demands on function and quality.

The chair has to be comfortable with a sitting position that is ergonomically correct. The wheels should roll easily for easy mobility with reliable brakes which hold the chair firmly in place when you want to stand up. At the same time the chair's functions should be easily adjustable.

Basically, the chair has to work well in every situation.

Especially adapted

REAL 9500/9600 EL are chairs that are especially adapted for people with weak muscles who need to relieve their hips, knees or ankles while working in a standing position at home or at work. These chairs are equipped with, among other things, a H-frame, saddle seat as well as a lifted seat position.
